Bradley M. Sant | Vice President
American Road & Transportation Builders Association

About the Speaker...

Bradley Sant is the senior vice president of safety and education for the American Road & Transportation Builders Association where he oversees safety, training & education programs, certification, and federal contracts, including the National Work Zone Safety Information Clearinghouse.

Previously, Brad served as director of hazardous materials training for the International Association of Fire Fighters; director of safety and health for the Building and Construction Trades Department, AFL-CIO; and as director of the National Resource Center for OSHA Training. Brad also recently served as Chairman of the Board of the Safety Equipment Institute, now the ASTM Certification Committee.

He graduated cum laude from Utah State University and earned a law degree from Georgetown University Law Center in Washington, D.C. He speaks Spanish fluently.

Preventing Runovers and Backovers: Internal Traffic Control Plans

The leading cause of death and injury for those who work on or adjacent to our roadways and transportation systems is “struck-by” incidents. Sadly, about half of these run-over and back-over incidents are caused by our own drivers, operators and equipment. Mr. Sant will provide an overview on a popular training program: “Preventing Runovers and Backovers: Internal Traffic Control Plans.” The training emphasizes the need to coordinate the interaction of work equipment with workers-on-foot. He will also provide an overview of a new safety certification program targeted to the non-safety professional: Safety Certification for Transportation Project Professionals.
